ECA Group brings its Mine Counter Measures expertise closer to its clients and establishes new offices in Canada

ECA Group, leader in solutions for Mine Counter Measures, recently opened offices in Canada. This ECA Group branch will focus on Engineering R&D and Programme Management capability. ECA Group aims at establishing strong local partnerships to provide state-of-the-art solutions in Mine Counter Measures for the Royal Canadian Navy.

A pioneer in its field, ECA Group recently answered the Canadian government's Call for Tenders relating to its MCM capability. Indeed, ECA Group is recognised for its unprecedented level of tailored automation, notably for mine warfare operations but also for rapid environmental assessment, search & rescue operations, hydrography and maritime operations and intelligence, and surveillance and recognition operations.

From coastal missions to deep offshore missions, ECA Group's systems of drones, software and autonomous robots support national sovereignty and keep crews and infrastructures safe. When integrating a new region, ECA Group establishes long-term partnerships based on sustainable collaborations. And, with its presence in Canada, ECA Group will be closer to answer its stakeholders' needs while benefiting from renowned Canadian academic, R&D and industrial expertise.

"We are thrilled to expand our expertise to Canada. Further establishing our presence in Northern America is a logical milestone as our solutions are fit to answer the region's constraints and needs, notably supporting the Royal Canadian Navy's sovereignty operations. Providing a fully containerised system and conducting Research, Survey and Search & Rescue operations in the Canadian Arctic are some of the challenges we know how to address," commented Dominique Giannoni, CEO of ECA Group.
